PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

At this time, I would like to take a moment to address our assembly today as President. In your delegate package there is a President's message for you to read at your convenience, so I won't take up much of your time.

I want to speak to the spirit of resilience that exists in education. Our children are doing their best to maintain friendships, build relationships with new teachers, navigate new health protocols, and learn their curriculum. Our teachers are doing their best to maintain normalcy for our school communities, deliver meaningful lessons in innovative ways, and help our children remain healthy. Our parents are doing their best to balance family, and work while navigating raising children in a global pandemic.

The teachers, principals, administrators, superintendents and trustees that work diligently every day so that we have the opportunity for resiliency in education this year are vital components and our students are lucky to have so many people working so hard for their success.

ASCA is grateful for parents on school councils across this province who are engaging, supporting and collaborating within their local communities to keep students successful this year. I am grateful as President of this organization to serve families like yours in the work that we do. When I am at the tables representing ASCA, I am representing you, and the experiences of your precious children, and I want you to know that it is a responsibility I carry daily and with great care.

Thank you for all that you do, locally and provincially, to help all students.

Respectfully,

Brandi Rai, ASCA President
